

Propane Safety Information

Propane is flammable and may cause fires and explosions. Propane is heavier than air and can collect initially at low levels. Always be sensitive to the slightest propane gas odor. Any sort of a propane gas odor may signal a serious leak. Investigate all foul odors. What you think may be garbage, sewage or a dead mouse may be a serious propane gas leak. Should you have questions as to whether the odor you've identified is actually propane, please refer to the scratch and sniff literature provided to you.

Under some of the following conditions, you may not smell a gas leak, so we recommend you install a propane gas detector(s) in accordance with manufacturer's instructions. Some people (especially the elderly) are unable to detect the smell of gas. Colds, allergies, sinus congestion, and the use of tobacco, alcohol, or drugs, may diminish your sense of smell. Cooking odors or other strong odors can cover up the smell of gas. On rare occasions, propane gas may lose its distinctive odor. This is called "odor fade". Air, water, and rust in a propane tank or cylinder may weaken the gas odor, especially if the valves were left open after the container has been emptied. Sometimes propane gas can lose its odor if a leak occurs underground. Odorant in leaking gas can absorb (stick) to building materials such as unpainted or untreated masonry and rough wall surfaces, to furniture fabrics and drapes, and to the inside walls of gas piping and static or periodically used propane containers and distribution systems.

If you smell propane gas in your house, camper, RV, workplace, or around any gas equipment:

Put out smoking materials and other open flames.

DO NOT operate electric switches, light matches, or use your phone. Any spark or flame in the area where propane gas is present may ignite the gas. This could include the spark in a light switch, telephone, appliance motor, and even static electricity from walking around the room.

Immediately get everyone out of the building, vehicle, RV trailer, or area.

Close all gas tank or cylinder supply valves.

Do not re-enter the building, vehicle, RV trailer, or area. Use your neighbor's phone and call a trained LP-Gas service person and the fire department. Even though you may not continue to smell gas, do not turn on the gas again.

Let the service person and firefighters check for propane gas leaks. Have them air out the area before you return.

Have properly trained LP-Gas service people repair the leak, then check and relight all of your propane gas appliances for you.

Important Safety Reminders

Don't enter an area where you suspect a gas leak. If you are in such an area, leave immediately!

Be alert for propane odor when working in areas where propane is used. Even a faint odor may indicate a hazardous situation.

Do not try to judge for yourself the level of danger of a gas leak by trying to determine if one smell of gas is weak or strong. All gas leaks pose a serious risk.

Repeated pilot outages could indicate a hazardous condition. Don't attempt to relight the pilot, or service your equipment.

If you choose to light your own pilots, call CityServiceValcon for instructions.

Before lighting a propane gas appliance, sniff around the area at floor level. If you smell gas, don't light the appliance.

Shut off the gas immediately at the tank, if your appliance has been flooded. Do not use your gas system again until the wet or flooded equipment has been checked and serviced.

Improperly vented or defective appliances can cause potentially fatal carbon monoxide poisoning. Have your propane system and appliances periodically

Don't tamper with or use tools to operate controls. If controls are difficult to operate by hand, call CityServiceValcon immediately.

Keep combustible products, like gasoline, kerosene or cleaners in a separate room from propane appliances. Your appliance pilot lights could ignite fumes from these combustibles.

Don't operate any propane gas appliance without reading the instructions carefully.

Some people wrongly believe that the smell of propane gas is a signal that their tank is nearly empty and should be refilled. When a tank is low, you may get a momentary whiff of gassy smell when stove top burners are ignited. However, if the smell of gas lasts more than an instant, then the continuing gas odor means that you may have a serious propane gas leak. Any persistent gassy smell is your signal to take immediate emergency action.
